

Certara Strategic Early Development Solutions

Expert Support at Every Stage from Candidate Selection through Phase 1 Completion

Successfully navigating the challenges of moving from candidate selection to successful Phase I completion requires significant expertise in drug development. Pharmaceutical development poses unique challenges due to its high cost, long duration and high attrition. Ensuring your therapy takes the optimal approach throughout early development is critical. Success in early development allows you to unlock funding and partnership opportunities and sets you up for success in later phases.

Derisk & Streamline Your Early Development Framework

Designed based on experience from hundreds of early development projects and clients across multiple indications and therapeutic areas, Certara has created a flexible early development model that supports you through the first two years. By streamlining your operational model and derisking your dependence on individual consultants, Certara delivers a faster, more agile framework for executing early development research.
